

Value vs. Insight

Different Games Require Different Plays

The “top” gurus always told me to give my stuff away for free.

Made sense at first but the same pattern kept repeating for 3 years:

1. Find something that works.
2. Give it away.
3. Make an offer so people can get more of it.
4. People would not take the offer because... well.. I gave it away.

This led to frustration and confusion at the time but in hindsight the reason is clear:

Different games require different plays.

The people who tell you to always give value away for free are selling to the 1% of the 1%.

(Think people who take equity in companies or who run a real estate syndicate.)

That's their game.

"Giving everything away for free" is the right play for them because they will only work with a couple dozen people max.

They sell partnerships worth $10M+.

We sell client packages for $1k-$100k.

Selling $10,000 stuff the same way you sell $10,000,000 stuff is like if you asked these two to play the same way:

	Rebounds	3-Pointers
Kobe	7,047	1,827
Shaq	13,099	1

They're not going to be as effective as they could be because different games require different plays.

Insight resulted in 5 clients.

Value is their game because that's what's most effective for them.

Insight is our game because that's what's most effective for us.

Some useful definitions:

Defining Value & Insight

Value is showing people what to do.

Insight is showing people where to look.

Don't try to look too deep into it. It really is this simple.

The same thing, said differently:

Topic: DM Scripts to Book Calls.

Value	STEAL this script that will allow you to get more leads. Step 1: Intro Step 2: Qualification Step 3: Transition Step 4: Proposal Step 5: Getting Them To Act Here's a message template so you can do each:
Insight	When we tried DMing people with common scripts we got 10 leads per 100 messages. When we switched our approach (details below) we got 25 leads per 100 messages. The main DM Tactic we used? High Status. Most DMs are low status and we realized prospects don't respond well to that. If your DMs are low status they'll treat you as a commodity and stall the sales conversation. They've seen it a million times. They're tired. And that closes them off to any help you might be able to offer (however effective).

	Whereas High Status DMs send a signal to prospects: "I'm willing to help you but I'm not willing to chase you." This interrupts the pattern they have in their head. Which gets their mind away from "who is this guy and what's he trying to sell me?" And gets their mind towards "I wonder if this guy can help me." I tell clients that before they use a script that has been "proven" they should ask themselves: Does this position me as high status or low status? If it's low status, there's no script in the world that will be able to fix that. Because the problem is rarely the script. The problem is the status you hold in your prospects' minds.

Topic: Eating Vegetables For Gut Health

Value	Stop eating vegetables if you have an inflamed gut. Eat these foods instead: - Ginger - Turmeric - Kombucha - Bone Broth - Kimchi These will heal your inflamed gut because they're ABCXYZ...
Insight	"Eat your greens" is terrible advice... ... For some people. Vegetables carry pesticides that can actually hurt your gut more than help it. Jackie followed common fitness trends that asked her to eat her greens. She was fit. Ran half a marathon. But still struggled with an inflamed gut. The solution? We stopped listening to conventional advice.

	And started listening to her body. We set up a Happy Gut Plan without vegetables because we found out that they were actually hurting her. The friend of many had become her enemy. She felt weird at first but after just a few days her gut stopped making those loud and embarrassing noises. 2 weeks later she stopped having sudden bowel movements. 3 months after her inflammation is gone. (And she broke a new running PR!). If she followed common advice today she might still be inflamed. But I always tell my clients to forget common practices so they can embrace the right practices: Just because something works well for someone doesn't mean it will work well for you.

Topic: Getting A Girl's Number

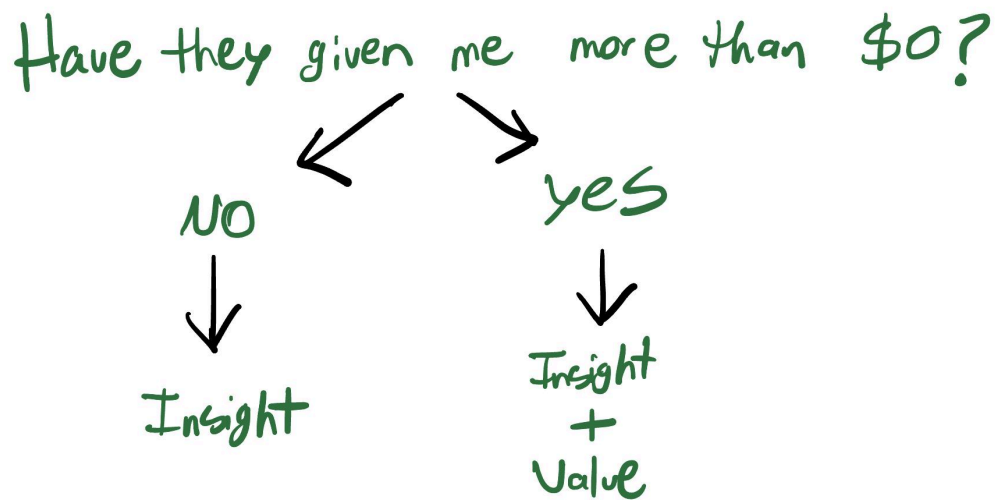

Value	Use THIS blueprint when going for the girl's number (Copy this). First, you need a Venue: I prefer - Coffee Shops - Libraries - Gyms Then you need a line: - "Hey I don't see you around here often." - "Hey excuse me but I thought you were beautiful and I wanted to say hi." - "Would you mind telling me where I can find a good croissant around here?" Start a conversation and then go with the transition: - The Busy Man: "Hey I need to go right now but can I get your number?" - The Travel Guy: "I'm in town for a few weeks. Show me around sometime?" - Directness: "I think you're cute. Wanna go out for a drink this weekend?"

	These have worked great for me. Feel free to use them too.
Insight	It's never been easier to connect with a beautiful woman but it's also never been trickier: Women today are bombarded by compliments and whack 2012 dating blog lines that have made them more closed off to potential partners than ever before. That's the bad news. The good news is that this is a huge opportunity if you know how to do it right. The modern way of approaching a woman is the Non-Threatening Approach. Unlike common practices, the first step is not impressing her. (Leave that for the pickup artists). The first step is non-verbally letting her know you're not a threat so she won't mark you as "another one of those". Non-Threatening approaches work because when everyone else pushes, you pull. When everyone else shows aggressiveness, you show confidence. And when everyone else looks needy, you look assertive. The Non-Threatening Approach has got me 27 numbers in the last 30 days. And if you want to stand out, I haven't found a better method than this.

Value shows you what to do.

Insight shows you where to look.

When To Give Value vs. When To Give Insight

Framework: What - Why - Where

Confession: I hate frameworks.

"Learn the rules like a pro so you can break them like an artist." - Picasso

It's hard for me to tell you exactly what I do because I myself am not conscious.

However, most of my best-performing content falls into this Insight Content Framework:

What?	Why?	Where?	Bridge Gap
-------	------	--------	------------

The What could be 3 things:

1. Problem
2. Outcome
3. Idea

We'll start with Problem.

What?	Why?	Where?	Bridge Gap
Problem	Why is this problem happening to you?	Where to look to get rid of this problem?	Socials - Share - DM - Subscribe - Question - Nothing
Outcome	Why did this outcome happen?	Where to look to create a similar outcome?
Idea	Why does this idea benefit you?	Where to look to get the benefits of this idea?	Email - Book - Buy - Reply

Analysis of a Problem Email:  I Bought An Apartment .

Analysis of an Outcome Email:  This email is written by a client .

Analysis of an Idea Email:  Audience Friendzone .

(Often my best emails have a mix. And that's ok. Rigidness kills creativity.)

3 Content Fundamentals

Writing is art. Not science. Frameworks work against you. Principles work for you.

This is why I read the “basic” books: How To Win Friends & Influence People, Influence, My Life In Advertising, Great Leads, The Adweek Copywriting Handbook, psychological biases...

Advanced means not skipping the fundamentals.

3 personal fundamentals:

Is it the truth? (Walter White test)

Not The Truth	Truth
Get your diet on point.	Food or food talk make you anxious and that's the only thing you can think about for the whole day.

	• You're worried you've ruined your metabolism because you've tried too many diets in the past with little success. • You just finished a cut and now are terrified to bulk because you don't want to feel fat.
--	---

Is it Specific?

Being Specific

PLATITUDES and generalities roll off the human understanding like water from a duck. They leave no impression whatever. To say, "Best in the world," "Lowest price in existence," etc., is¹¹ at best simply claiming the expected. But superlatives of that sort are usually damaging. They suggest looseness of expression, a tendency to exaggerate, a careless truth. They lead readers to discount all the statements that you make.

Not Specific	Specific
This program is going to get you an overflow of leads and a ton of clients.	• We'll use this funnel to get you your next 10 customers and then we'll turn that into your next 3 clients. • I'll give you my $102,000 MRR Google Doc Template so you can get clients without sales calls. • The goal is to get your next 3 clients, then cashflow your one core offer to $20k and then work on your retention so we can cashflow it to $20k per month.

For non-ROI offers: What will stop happening? Or what will start happening? → Skin, Hair.

Are you Showing, Not Telling?

Tell	Show
This is how my Quit Porn methods can help you.	• I used to be ultra skinny and had no motivation. Now I put in 40 pounds and I feel and look much better. • Thanks to quitting porn I could build my business and now I moved to sunny Spain where I work remotely. • Just ran 10k for the first time. Before I didn't even feel the urge to train. Now I have abundant energy I can spend (Today: 436 calories in 1 hour).

Two notes:

1. You can show both what this has done in your life or what it has done in other's life.
2. No outcome is too small. Smaller outcomes are easier to believe.

If I don't skip any of these 3 fundamentals I'm comfortable with pressing Send.

Analysis of an email:  My Twitter pretty much sucks. .

Content Strategy

The best strategy is copy & paste because people literally don't care:

one of the few emails I often open

The Strategy:

1. Create for email first (I do daily).
2. (One day later): Copy & Paste steps 1-3 for socials.
3. Change how you bridge the gap.

What?	Why?	Where?	Bridge Gap

I choose my bottleneck. My bottleneck is not leads or offers. It's how many 1-on-1's I'm willing to do. I like 1-on-1's and that's the first thing I do with new clients to get them clear on their offer. Often we have some leftover time so we also cover how to launch and get their next 3 clients. A lot gets done. And I like it. But they do take energy. Energy that I'm not willing to give away to everyone. Last week I opened 12 client spots and they were all taken before the official email came out.	I choose my bottleneck. My bottleneck is not leads or offers. It's how many 1-on-1's I'm willing to do. I could easily open more but I won't. Some months, like January, I'll take 25 clients because I want to work. Some months, like this one, I'll only take 12 or 8 because I've got stuff going on. Yet we can still make money predictably because we follow two Cash Creator Principles: 1. Deadlines. My deadlines are impossible to fake. Example: I run workshops some Mondays so I can't really sell it on Tuesdays. When your deadline is real people move faster. 2. Capping Spots. I limit my spots because I know my Freedom Number and how many clients I need to get there. And when you limit your supply, it sends a signal to the market that you're not desperate. As a result, demand goes up. As Cash Creators we don't get our bottleneck chosen for us. We choose our bottleneck. And it can be as simple as getting clear on what you want and how many clients you need to get there. Likes ain't cash, JK Molina P.S.
