

1000 New Whales

There is no best platform except for the one you own. You can have a big following on social media but you don't really control how many people see your stuff. That makes that audience inferior to email in which you do.

I have more active clients than average likes on a post. But I know how to get Whales into the list and sell them something and that's why this meme is real:

Getting Whales in your list is not hard. It's just kind of repetitive. You will grow your list if you have these 3 pieces in place: Your Big Ideas, Cadence and Variance.

1. Your Big Ideas.

Promises attract Fish. Ideas attract Whales. I've made a lot of money off just repeating the same 3 concepts of Whale Bait, Insight-Based Content and The Offer Shell. If someone agrees with your Big Idea, the only place they can get more of it is by joining your list. Which makes it much more desirable.

2. Cadence

The easiest way to get people into your list is by making an offer to join it every day. We do this with Big Promos (that give you big subscriber spikes) and with Small Promos (that give you consistent subscriber growth). Both matter.

3. Variance.

People stop listening when they know what you're going to say. It's not enough to ask them to join the list. We have to change the way we do so so they actually follow through.

$$\begin{array}{c} \text{Big Ideas} \\ + \\ \text{Cadence} \\ + \\ \text{Variance} \end{array} = 1,000 \text{ New Whales}$$

Our goal today is deploying these 3. Then craft an 8-Week Plan to start funneling these Whales into your list.

Let us begin.

Your Big Ideas

"Unless your campaign has a big idea, it will pass like a ship in the night." - David Ogilvy

We're all Offer Salespeople. But the paradox is that it's easier to attract Whales when you look at yourself like an Idea Salesperson. Not an Offer Salesperson.

Offers come with a choice. People choose to take it or not.

Ideas don't. When people hear an idea they either agree with it or not immediately. It's an automatic reaction.

This reflex matters because if you can get someone to buy into your idea they have no choice but to lean in. It makes joining your list much more desirable because that's the only place they can get more of it.

Don't try to get people to join your list. Try to get them to buy into your Ideas. Because that makes your list the natural next step.

4 years of selling taught me that people buy stuff mostly because of your ideas. The offer is just the enabler.

A Cash Creator the other day said "I didn't even need to read your offer. I was already sold on the ideas already." That's how powerful Big Ideas are.

You probably already have a few. But how can you know for sure?

Short answer: If someone other than you uses it in a sentence, you have a Big Idea.

Is it in the offer shell style?

to me ▾

Do you have fitness coaches that do the offer shell?

Someone using your Idea in a sentence is big because in the entirety of the English language they couldn't find a better way to describe it than yours.

You probably already have a Big Idea. Think back at your conversations with clients, customers, leads and followers and think,

Which of my ideas have they used in a sentence?

Pause and think about 1.

If you couldn't find any, some useful frames for Big Ideas:

- A spin on common practices: Can it be better? → Offer Suites vs. Offer Shells
- The New Way: What's a new way to do an old thing? → The Workshop Funnel
- Identity: Who do you embody? → Cash Creators
- Contrarian: What's incorrect? → Value vs. Insight
- Simplification: What can you Justin Timberlake? → Whale Bait (Original by Frank Kern)
- Engagement: Which ideas consistently get you high engagement?

Test 1 that feels strong by posting it a lot. Repeat until someone other than you uses it in a sentence. When it happens, that's how you know you've got a winner.

When you find yours, put your Big Idea in a landing page. It can be as simple as offershell.com:

Put this in all your links in bio so that you can direct people from channels you don't control (socials) into the one you do (email).

You can expect an increase in subs just by having this in place. It's already more powerful than "join my newsletter". It will get you Whales passively.

Now we need traffic so we can get them actively. We do this with 2 tools: Cadence and Variance.

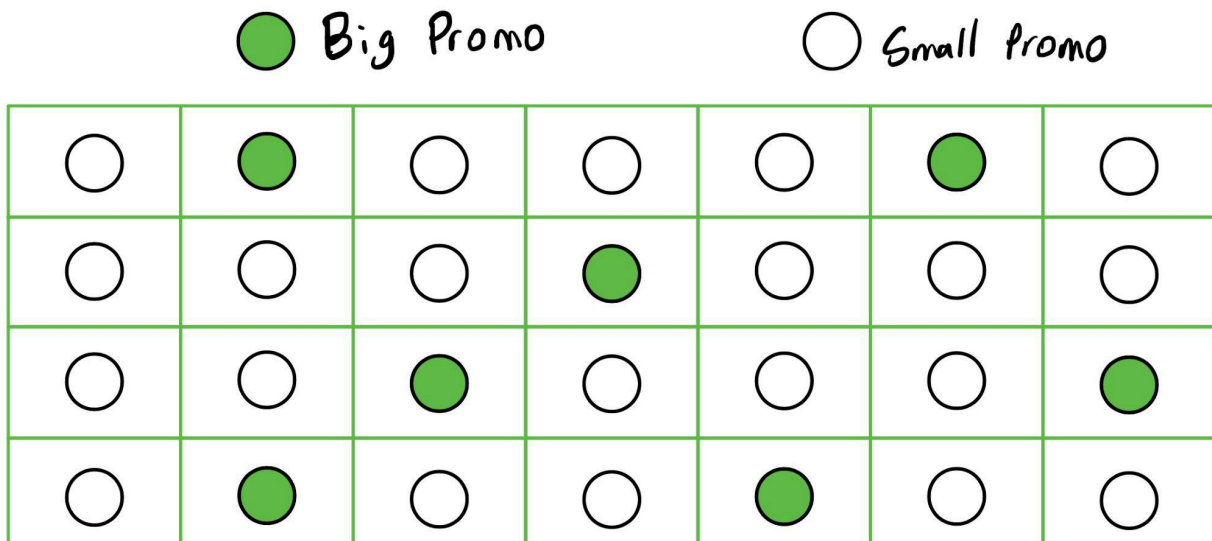

Cadence

The easiest way to grow your list every day is to promote it every day. We do this with two kinds of promos: Big & Small.

A Big Promo requires more work than a Small Promo but it gets you lots of subs. Think creating lead magnets or hosting events.

A Small Promo requires little work and can be automated. Think plugs, or an IG story. It's smaller than a Big Promo but it's consistent.

Both matter. To promote our list we need to make an offer every day. But we can't make Big Promos every day. So Small Promos serve as a placeholder in between:

I recommend 1 Big Promo a week. If you want to go aggressive you can do it 3 times a week. (That's what I used to do when I did ghostwriting).

5 Big Promos and 9 Small Promos that work:

Big Promos

Insight-Based Lead Magnets

When I created "valuable" lead magnets I got lots of subs but they took forever to buy. And only a few did.

The Insight-Based Lead Magnet came out of the Value vs. Insight idea: Showing people that you have the answer leads to better leads than giving it.

This resulted in many more subscribers and a much higher quality lead.

Logic:

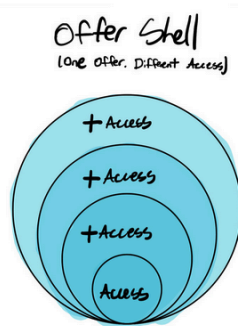

1. Get email subs with an Insight-Based Lead Magnet.
2. Use that Insight to create a one-time customer.

We do this because it's too early to sell a client offer. You'll get more clients if you focus on creating customers first and THEN clients than if you focus on clients straight away.

3. End up with the best of two worlds:
 - a. Leads you got with insight (good leads).
 - b. Customers you can start conversations with (the best leads).

Step 1: Put one of your Big Ideas on a landing page.

The Offer Shell Model: How I Serve 80+ Clients
In Less Than 3 Hours A Day
(With 96.5% profit margins)

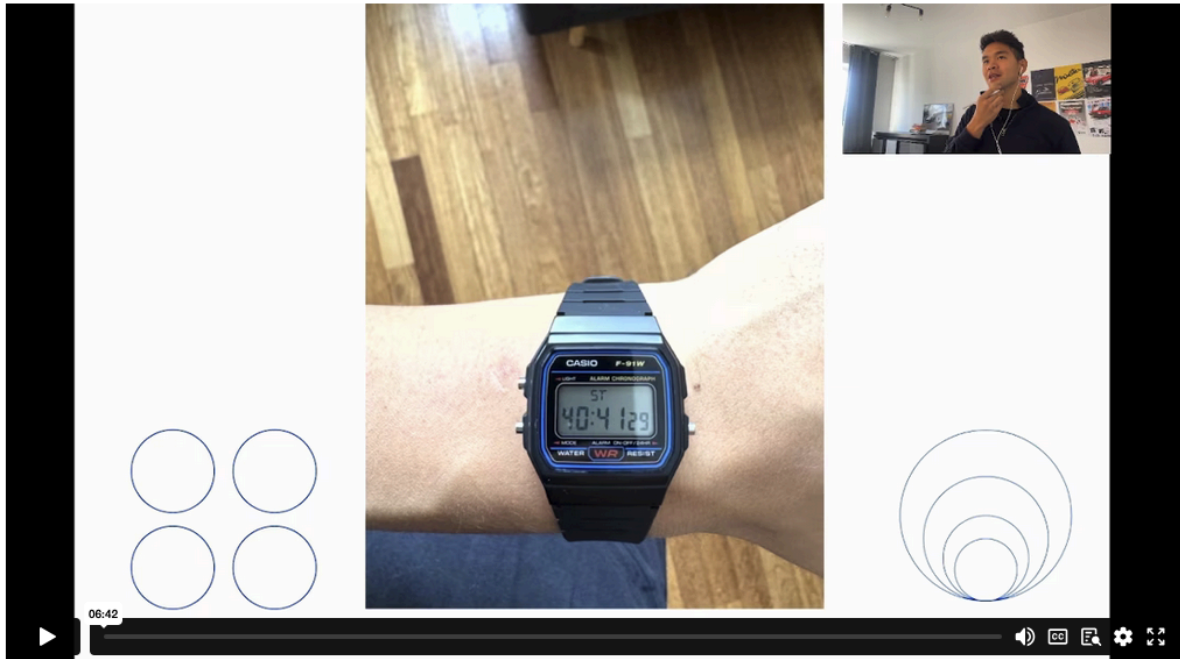

Watch 7-Minute Walkthrough

Step 2: Create a short Insight-Based video.

Step 1: Watch your Offer Shell Walkthrough

The Offer Shell: How I Serve 80 Clients In Less Than 3 Hours A Day And 96.5% Profit Margins

The video is short and only has 3 parts:

- A) Insight.
- B) Proof.
- C) Customer Offer.

Example:

Value-Based Lead Magnet	Insight-Based Lead Magnet
I've run 19 workshops and I've ranked the ones with the best results. Get the copy for each below [HUGE Giveaway] → Would've given my templates for free. Attracts triers. Not buyers.	Leads make the worst clients because of how much we ask from them. Jumping from $0 to a $5,000 offer is a big jump. One that they're not ready to make. The solution is not to make your offer better. But to make your offer smaller. Not cheaper. Smaller.

	Just like giving a test drive increases car sales because you get a feel for the machine, Making people spend a small amount and THEN making your client offer increases how many clients you get because they get a feel for your program. Sometimes the easiest way to get someone to give you a big amount is to get them to give you a small amount first. This is why I don't pitch to leads and run The Workshop Funnel instead. The Workshop Funnel is why 80% of my clients come from 0.2% of my audience. This 0.2% beats the other 99.8% because they spent something. And that's what makes them so much more valuable than a random lead. It's not that your offer needs work. You just need a smaller offer in between. It's my most effective funnel and one that you can set up in a day. Below I'll give you the templates and copy of all of my 19 workshops so you can get your next 3 clients with it:

Step 3: Introduce the customer offer that fills the gap your Insight created.

Step 2 (Optional): Claim Your Offer.

Step 4) Promote this with an Auto DM / Two Step: "I have this. Like / Comment and I'll send it to you."

You can automate this with Manychat on Instagram and Facebook. Taplio for LinkedIn and Tweet Hunter for X. Feel free to send it to the community for feedback before it comes out.

Value-Based Lead Magnets

Part of life is growing. And I have to admit that Value-Based Lead Magnets can work for some people.

This will get you lower quality leads but it will get you more leads. If you're going for sheer numbers then it works.

The key to Value-Based Lead Magnets is to make the lead magnet a smaller component of a bigger thing.

You want to get subs but remember the goal is creating a customer because customers are the best leads.

Wrong Value-Based Lead Magnet	Right Value-Based Lead Magnet
These 11 Whale Bait post templates got me one client each. Get this Swipe File of the 11 so you can get clients too.	Give them 1. Then sell the workshop with the other 10.
Steal my 3 offer templates that closed 80 recurring clients, upsold 25 and created 600 customers.	Give them 1 template. Offer the others you have as a bundle which they can purchase below.
I've run 19 workshops and I've ranked the ones with the best results. Get them below along with the copy [HUGE Giveaway].	Give them the copy of 1 workshop. Allow them to purchase the rest of the Swipe File.

Step 1) Decide which smaller component of a bigger component you'll give.

Creating lead magnets can be a lot of work. But what if you didn't have to?

You can just craft a lead magnet from the stuff you already have. Often the things that are just taking up space in our Drive can change our business.

- Templates: Do you have any that allow you to perform your work?
 - My Google Doc Offers

- Swipe Files: What activities do you do every day that leave a record?
 - All my emails
- Scripts: Do you follow a method the same way repeatedly?
 - The script I use to turn inquiries into clients.
- Collections: What library of “stuff” are you building either consciously or unconsciously?
 - The SOPs that Christian uses
- Stuff in your portal: What videos, docs or PDFs are there that proved valuable in their time?
 - Previous workshops.
- Previous Offers: What offers did well before?
 - My top 3 workshops.
- Assets: Do you have any tools that come in handy for you to do the thing?
 - The Season Sequence.
- Value-Based Posts: Which ones have you done that you can sell?
 - Tom’s Knees.

Step 2) Frame it as a magic pill.

Magic Pills are the difference between the thing and the ✨thing✨. It means putting a wrapper on the thing to make it look easy:

Thing	Magic Pill
Template: My Google Doc Offer	The $1 Million Google Doc Template You Can Swipe
Swipe File: All my old emails	The 90 Days Of Offers Swipe File
Collections: Sales conversations	The Cash Script That Converts in 5 Messages
Asset: 100 Ways To Promote Your List	1000 New Whales
Framework: I follow a framework for emails.	Value vs. Insight 3-Week Calendar

Waitlist was not a magic pill. It sold 9 copies.

90 Days of Offer Swipe File was. It sold 117 copies.

If you get one thing right, make it the Magic Pill. Bring your ideas to the calls or the community so we can Magic Pill them.

The rest of the steps are the same:

3. Put the Magic Pill on a landing page to get the sub.

4. Walk them through the lead magnet and point to where they can get the rest of it.

5. Sell customer offer.

→ Resource: ClickFunnels template for pages.

→ If you buy retweets, shares or run ads - I recommend using it on either one of your lead magnets. Your money is better spent here than on regular posts.

Events

People attend concerts even though headphones have better audio and you don't have to stand in line for an hour.

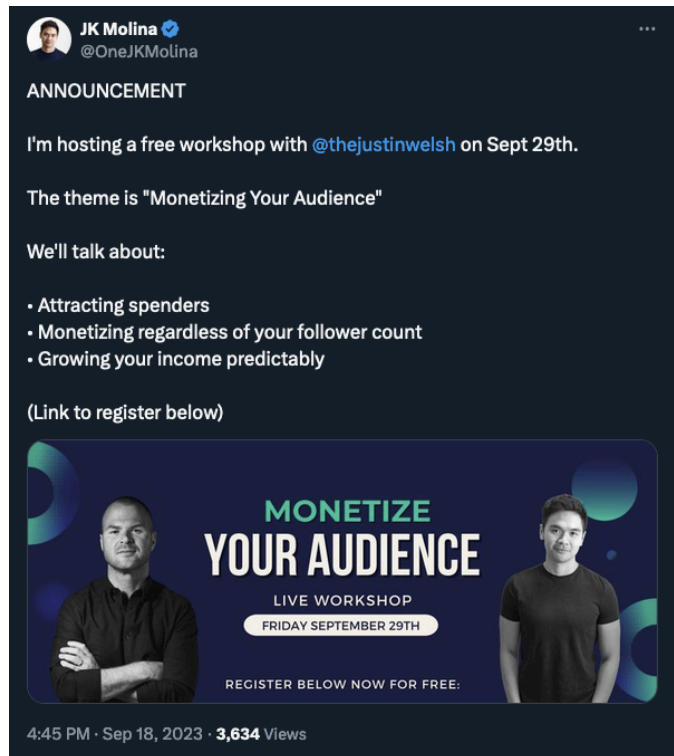

Because a concert is an event. And events are fun.

Create an event that they can only join inside your list. It's fun and it gives them a reason to join now.

JV Events

You can leverage other people's audiences by hosting a free event for them. This is especially good to expose yourself to other people's audiences.

Message:

You:

- Take care of all the tech
- Invite your audience
- Make them look good
- Do the work

- Show up
- Get subs

Quiz

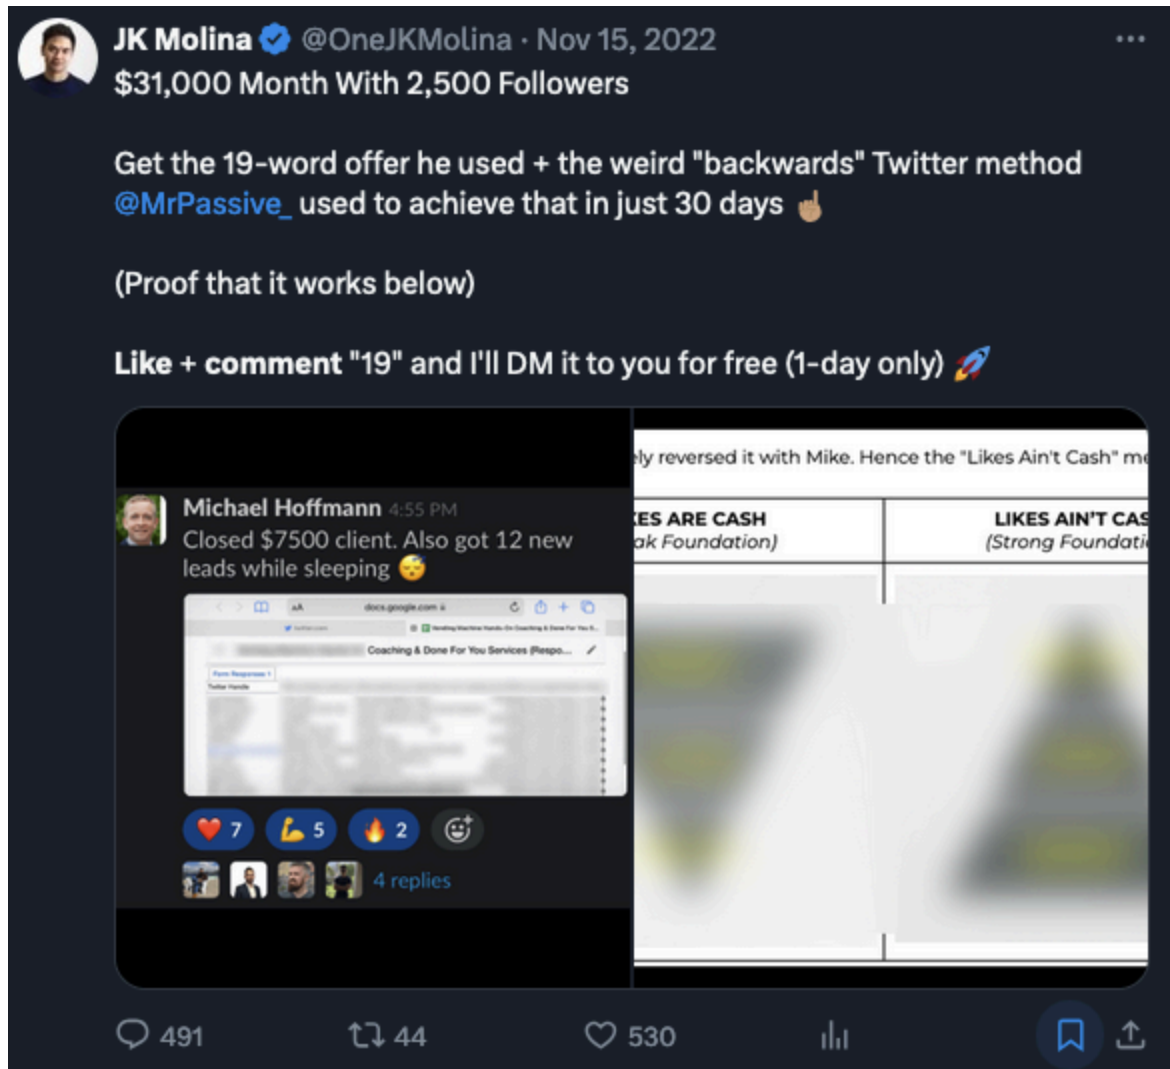

Make a quiz and send the result to their email.

This one by Tanner got 140+ subscribers. People like having stuff tailored to them.

Interview / Case Study

Show how you helped a client get a result. The key here is making them look like the hero. The story is about them. Not you.

Small Promos

These are what you plug in between the Big Promos to get subs every day:

Plugins

A post does well and you plug something below.

The key to these is that they need to be congruent with the original post:

Email-Only Offer

Say you're running a campaign to your list. Emails will come out anyway. So you might as well tell people about it.

This has the added benefit of creating pressure for people in your list to act.

Reason Why Now

If we don't give people a reason to move they rarely do. Tell your audience that you'll give your list something soon so they join soon.

It's helpful if you have emails scheduled one day in advance. You schedule the email for tomorrow to get sales. And you talk about it today to get subs.

If you don't have them scheduled, you can recycle an email and only send it to new subs.

Clients' Outcome

Sidenote: Outcomes don't need to be big. Small outcomes work as well.

Celebrations

You can use anything as an excuse to sell. Marcel used his dog's birthday. I used my trip to Guatemala. Use a celebration as a reason why you're giving something only to your list:

You now have a Big Idea that you can put on every social media link in bio.

And 6 Big Promos and 9 Small Promos to drive traffic into it:

Big Promos	Small Promos
• Insight-Based Lead Magnets • Value-Based Lead Magnets • Events • JV Events • Quiz • Interviews	• Plugins • Proof • Email-Only Offers • Reasons Why Now ◦ Philosophy ◦ Insight ◦ Problem ◦ Your Outcome ◦ Your Clients' Outcome • Celebrations

The last component is varying the offers so people don't get used to them.

Variance

People stop listening when they know what you're going to say.

To keep getting value out of your Big and Small Promos, vary the way you make them:

3 Ways of Varying Big Promos

1. Recycle your Big Promos every 12 weeks. This allows them to breathe and you can make them again when people have forgotten about it (they will).
2. Change something about the hook to make it look new. We call this Red Velvet. One small change can freshen a Promo. Two ways to do this:

- Change the title to an adjacent outcome.

Original: How I Got 10 Clients.

- Time: How I got 10 clients with 2 hours of work.
 - Result: How one funnel change led to double the amount of clients.
 - Context: Me last year vs. Me this year. Here's what I did:
- Change the Magic Pill. (Calendly Kit).
3. Create another one. With the Tools above you just need a video, some copy and an existing asset to make it work.

100 Ways Of Varying Small Promos

You can use the  Email Plugs Swipe to vary your Small Promos.

Recap & Application

Now you have the 3 components in place:

$$\begin{array}{c} \text{Big Ideas} \\ + \\ \text{Cadence} \\ + \\ \text{Variance} \end{array} = 1,000 \text{ New Whales}$$

It's not hard. It's just kind of repetitive. But when you get the 3 components right it just works out.

But these don't serve you if we don't have a plan and stick to it.

So let's craft 📅 Your Next 8 Weeks.

What's Next?

1. Execute on Your Next 8 Weeks.
