

Audience Respect

The industry optimizes for behaviors that lower the respect people have for you:

- Be always open.
- Be always helpful.
- Give everything away for free.

Which is counterproductive because this didn't get me respect. This got me in the friendzone. Lots of thank you's and few just paid's.

I built my IG with Audience Respect in mind. It has 200,000 less followers than X. But it makes me just as much.

Before	After
 You sent me a cold dm about consulting service. I am asking about the price Aug 30, 2023, 11:13 PM	 Thank you just waiting to be accepted in skool!

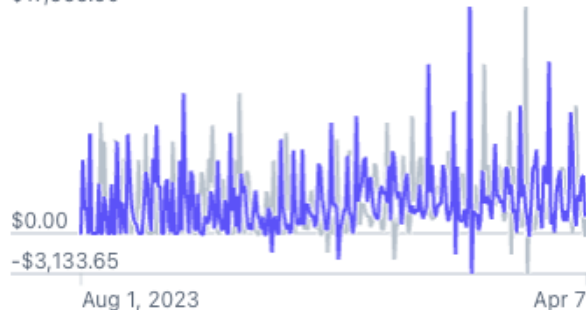

This time I didn't give everyone free help. Instead I gave them 3 pieces we'll install with you today. And they're largely responsible for it being so much more efficient.

These 3 pieces together allowed me to make $752,000+ in 9 months without a sales team, chasing or acting low status (which I personally despise).

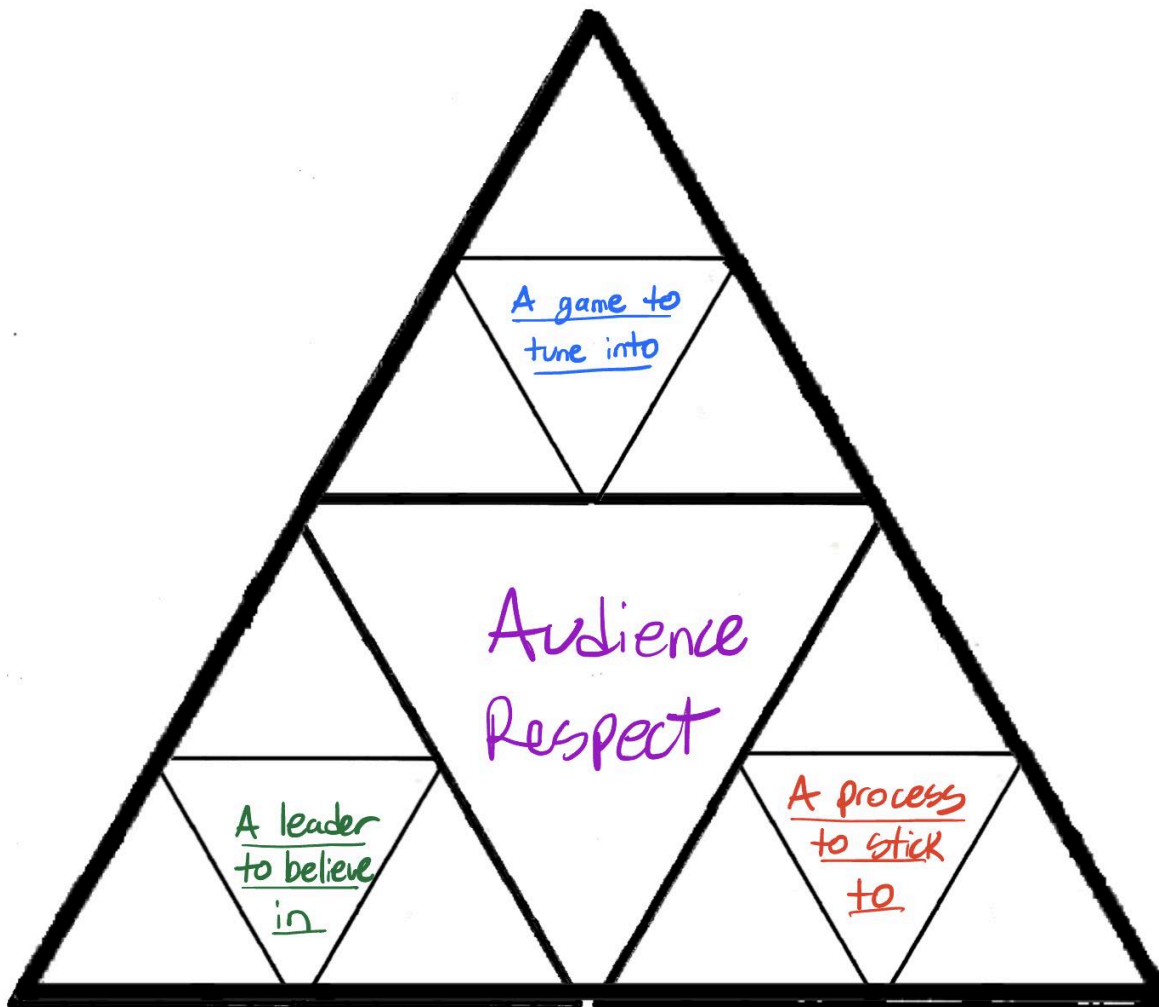

Net volume from sales ⓘ +9.2%

$706.6K $647.1K previous month

$17,665.90

Today we install these 3 for you:

A Game To Tune Into	3
Find Goal	5
Declare The Goal	5
Update On Progress	7
A Leader To Believe In	10
Problems	11
Outcome	12
Ideas	13
A Process To Stick To	16
Real Scarcity	17
Real Urgency	18
Real Consequences	120

Recap	25
Implementation	26
Complementary Resources	26

A Game To Tune Into

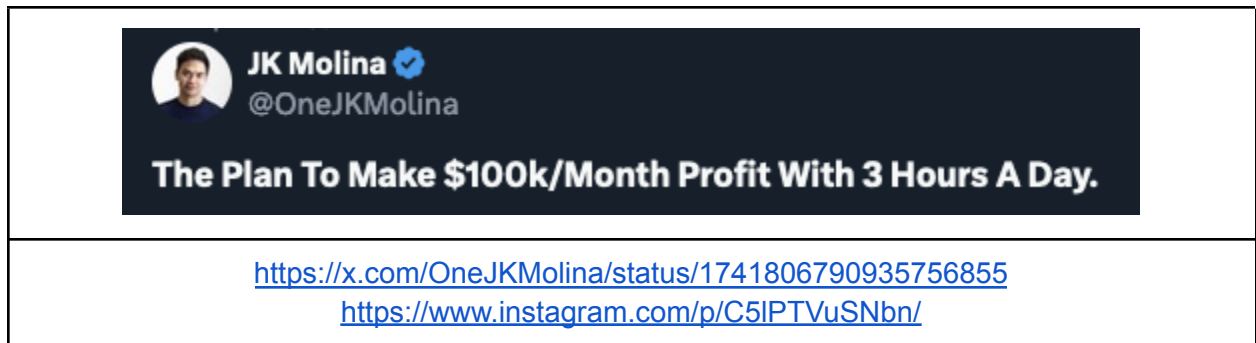

Humans love games.

They can't help but pay attention when you play an exciting one. Then constantly update them on your progress.

A post that has made me multiple 6 figures:

I showed people the game I'm playing. $100,000/month profit by the end of the year.

This started the game.

Then I keep updating it. Which gets people to “tune into the game”:

It's the first step to building your Audience Respect. Most coaches / consultants just "exist". There are no stakes. No excitement. No story we can tune into and fall in love with.

Giving your followers a game to tune into makes them pay attention to you (and as a result - to your offers).

We give the audience a game to tune into in 3 pieces:

Find Goal

In order to win the game we need to define what the goal of the game is.

"Making as much money as possible" is a bad goal because you can't reach it. (Yet it's the most common one).

Knowing exactly how much is less stressful and more interesting to the audience.

I don't see my audience as something to be monetized. But as a magnet for the 137 Cash Creators I need to make the money I want to make.

Monetizing an audience is scary.

Finding 137 people isn't.

When you find this goal it also sends a subtle message: "I don't need that many people. And if it's not you then it will be someone else."

High status.
Non-needy.
And most importantly, true.

We call our Goal our Freedom Number: how much money you need to be truly free in terms of time and money.

You can use this template to find your Freedom Number:

+ Freedom Number \(Make A Copy\)

Note: Your goal doesn't need to be the Freedom Number. If you have another one, go for it. But if you don't have one right now, do the Freedom Number.

Now we have a Goal. Time to declare it:

Declare The Goal

The importance of declaring a goal:

"Embrace accountability, and take business risks under your own name. Society will reward you with responsibility, equity, and leverage." - Naval

Declaring your goal is extremely attractive because it creates accountability. If you fail then everyone will know. It comes with consequences.

The consequences are not big. Rocky lost his first fight and we still love him. But they exist and people fear them.

This is good news. Declaring your goal creates consequences. And the courage to face those consequences makes people respect you.

Declaring your goal changes how you are perceived:

From a guru selling something to a man on a mission.

The declaration of the goal needs three components:

- A) The Goal
- B) The How
- C) The Why

For me, I wanted to profit $100,000/month the Cash Creator Way because I was burnt out and tired of not taking any money home.

The 3 must be powerful to you in order for them to be powerful to your audience.

They need to be true.

 JK Molina  @OneJKMolina The Plan To Make $100k/Month Profit With 3 Hours A Day.
https://x.com/OneJKMolina/status/1741806790935756855 https://www.instagram.com/p/C5IPTVuSNbn/

Update On Progress

When I first found out about Twitter it was mainly about sports news:

Minute 50: Messi gets the ball.

Minute 51: Messi shoots.

Minute 52: Messi scores.

Those were literally the tweets.

Treat your stories / tweets / posts the same way. You're playing a game and you're updating people on the game.

There's two kinds of updates to make:

Major Updates:

Percentage Hits	Updates In Business	Updates In Progress
• 10% • 20% • 25% • 33% • 50% • 60% • 70% • 75% • 80% • 85% • 90% • 95% • 100%	Announcement: I'm splitting up with my business partner Here's the story:  https://www.instagram.com/p/C5V4hfQRVZs/?img_index=1	I don't need unlimited scale to reach it. I only need to find 137 Cash Creators and make sure I deliver. So far I've found 64. 68 to go. https://www.instagram.com/p/C5iqgnjMhkS/?img_index=7

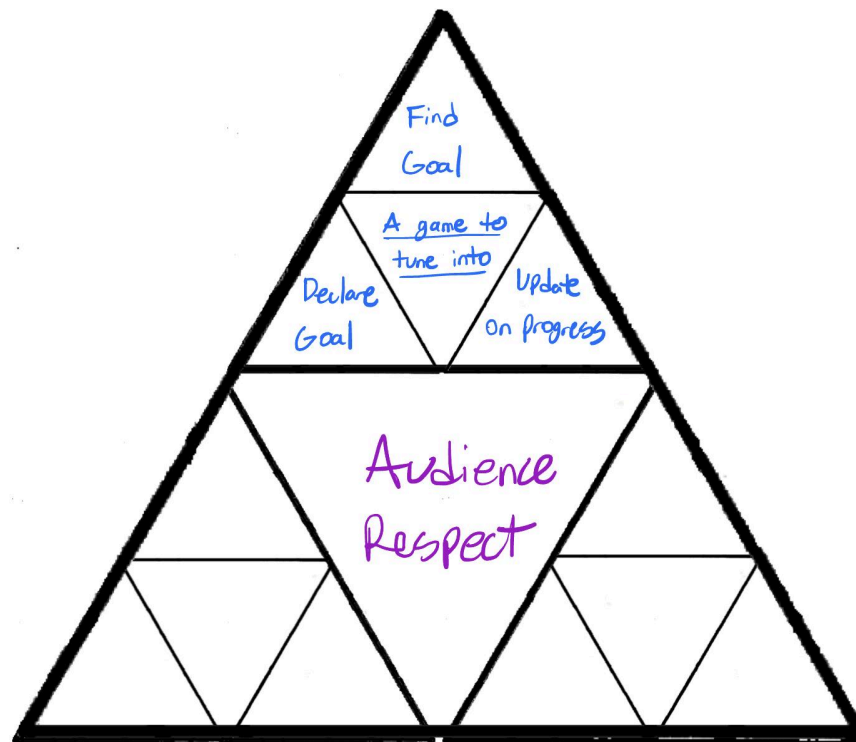

Minor Updates:

Win	Reminding Of Goal	Event that day
☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  * ☐ $100.00 USD Succeeded ✓  *	$100,000 per month in profit breakdown The Goal = $100k in personal profits. 120 Cash Creator Community Spots for $300-$450 a week = ~$130,000 MRR 12 Cash Creator Table Seats for $500-$1000 a week = ~$24,000 MRR. Partnering up with 5 creators I'll choose for 10% profits + 10% on sale = Long term game. Plus ad-hoc sales of $100 workshops, $1k - $5k calls and paying for months in advance... This adds up to ~$160,000. ($160k) - (my partner's buyout) - (costs) = $100k per month in personal profit.

Event	Over The Shoulder	Physical Movement
Non-Business Related	L's	Statistics
In hindsight	Emotions	Recycle (Recycle your top ones every 6-8 weeks).

I recommend doing minor updates at least once a week. Major updates whenever they happen.

You don't have to force them. You just have to mine them. Because they're happening but sometimes you're not aware of them.

A Leader To Believe In

Frank from House of Cards shows exactly what giving people a Leader To Believe In means:

Best Speech in House of Cards .

To be a leader one must demonstrate Insight. Not Value.

People forget people who give them Value.

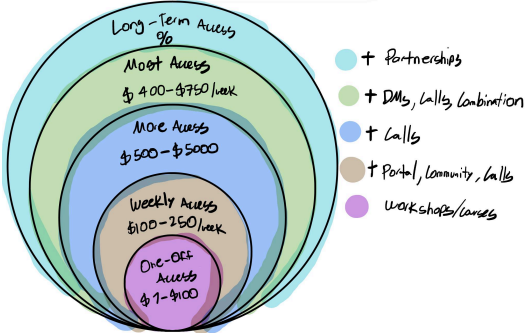

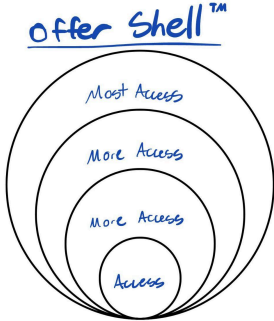

I remember plenty of Top 10 posts. But I have no idea who posted them.

Value posts don't demonstrate leadership because they have no mystery. They don't get the person interested in the messenger. They get them interested in the message.

Which is not what we want.

We use Insight posts instead because they create attraction but also mystery. Two characteristics of a leader.

At the risk of sounding like a broken record: Value is giving the answer. Insight is showing you have it.

Value	Insight
You need an offer shell with • $100/week • $250/week • $500/week • A PIF package of 20% discount Use this to monetize your audience more efficiently: 	I don't monetize things. I monetize access. For this I use an Offer Shell: This has allowed me to serve 80 clients while working less than 3 hours a day:
Makes the audience want to: Implement.	Makes the audience want to: Lean in.

There are 3 kinds of Insight-Based Posts that increase how much people believe in you:

1. Problems
2. Outcomes
3. Ideas

Problems

Market research is overrated in our industry because problems are almost always the same.

Health? Bad health.

Wealth? No money.

Relationships? No sex.

The problems are the same. We just need the solution to be different:

Same Problem	Promo	Different Solution
Not enough clients	Value vs. Insight	Do Insight. Not Value.
Not enough clients	Offer Shell	Monetize Access. Not Things.
Not enough clients	The Workshop Funnel	Add a one-time offer before you make your recurring offer.

Don't give them the answer. Prove that you have it.

Outcome

The best content is collected. Not created.

People don't want to be told the future. They want to be shown the past because it saves them the hassle of thinking.

Two steps:

1. Collect outcomes big and small. (My best email is about a small outcome).
2. Share the insight of those outcomes.

A useful idea generator:

Outcome That Happened	Yesterday?	Last week?	Last month?	Last year?
To You
To Your Clients
In Your Business

Outcome That Happened	Yesterday?	Last week?	Last month?	Last year?
To You	I finished my work in 41 minutes.	I went to Canada with John and Ryan.	I went to my country to celebrate my birthday and made money.	Let go of a model that kept me stuck.
To Your Clients	Larry got an upsell to his other offer.	Rashid provided a summary.	Ayo gave some kind words.	Marcel had a win.
In Your Business	Closed the loop on someone that demanded too much.	Hosted a workshop that made some money.	It was my third month without a business partner.	Stopped doing YouTube.

We often overlook our best marketing material. And that's good.

Because sometimes we don't need better marketing. We just need better memory.

Ideas

Ideas outsell products.

Selling people into a content product is hard.

Selling people into the Whale Bait idea is easy. And it transitions naturally into Whale Bait (the product).

I rarely sell products on socials. I prefer to do that by email. My goal with social media isn't to sell products. That's what email is for. My goal for social media is to sell my ideas. Which allows me to sell more of my products.

To sell them we need to find them:

We all have ideas that help us accomplish the thing.

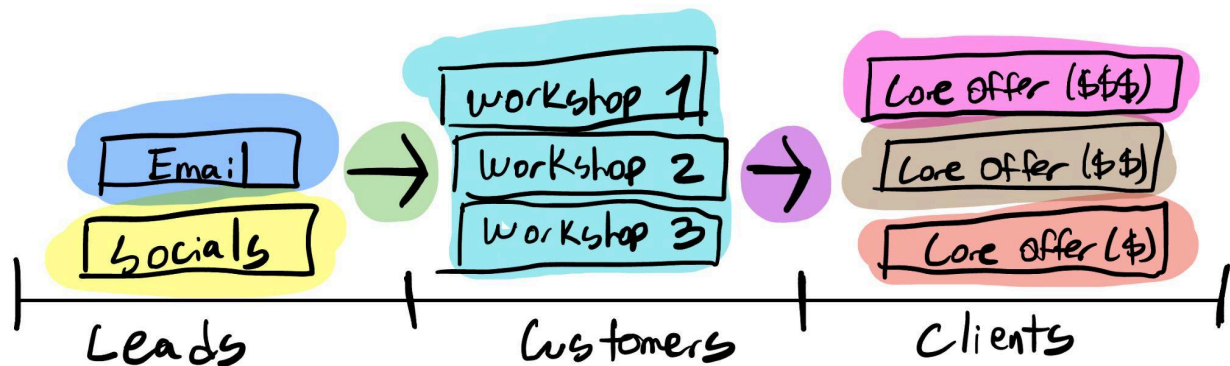

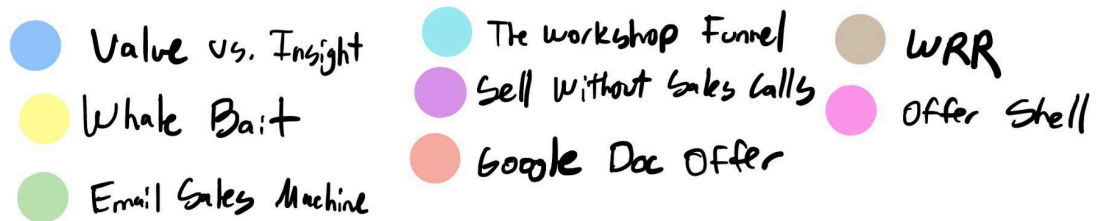

Yet these ideas are often more in our muscles than in our brain. We have the muscle memory to execute them. But we rarely articulate how. Which is a waste.

Articulating them vastly increases Audience Respect because you are literally the only supplier in the world.

People respect you more when you are the only supplier of something in the world.

3 steps to increase your Audience Respect with ideas:

1. Extract the process from your brain.
2. IP the ideas.
3. Sell the ideas.

Whale Bait isn't real. Value vs. Insight isn't real. The Offer Shell isn't real...

Unless I make them real.

1. Map out your process
2. IP the ideas.
3. Sell the ideas.

They could be visual like an Offer Shell:

Or just written like Value vs. Insight:

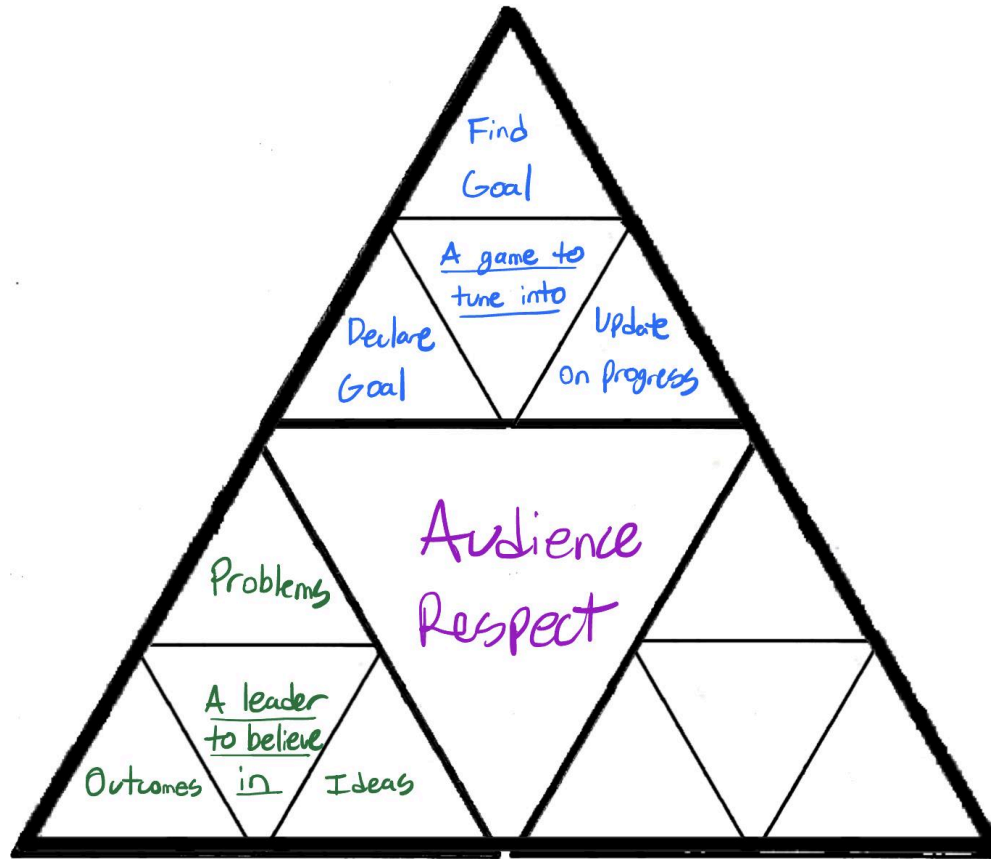

It doesn't matter as long as they're yours and you can prove that they matter.

—

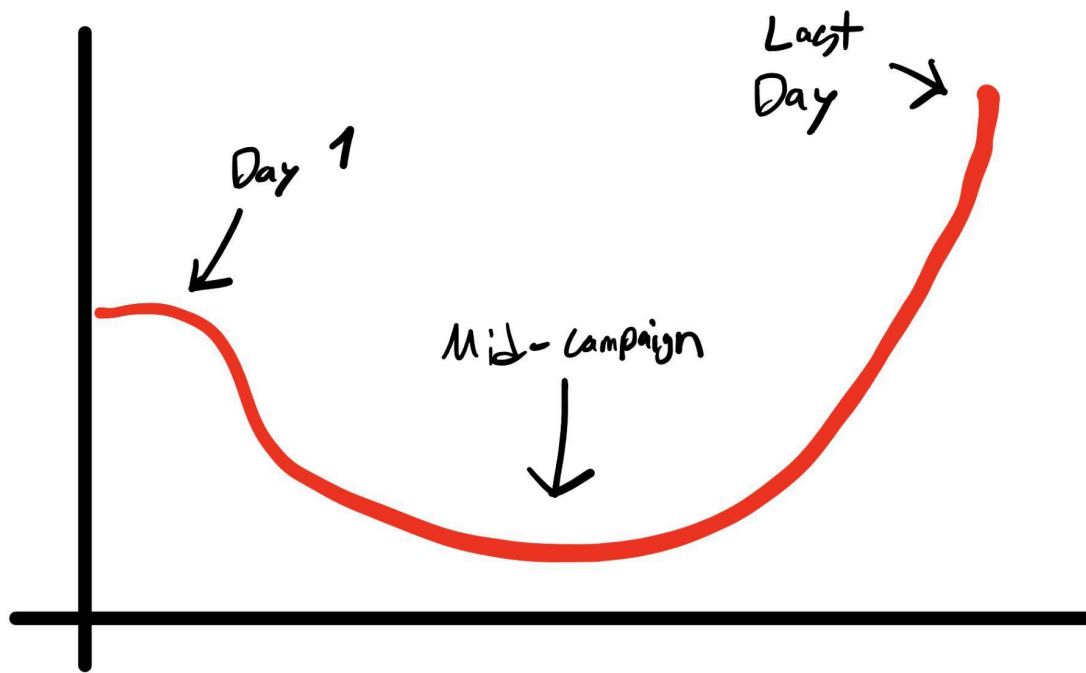

I recommend posting one Insight per day. Then Copy-Paste them into all your platforms.

For 90 templates on how to use these, refer to the 90 Days Of Offers Swipe File inside Skool.

A Process To Stick To

This is what my campaigns' sales usually look like:

Contrary to popular belief, value slows leads down.

But consequences speeds leads up.

And in my opinion it's a mistake not to include them.

In the beginning few will believe your consequences. A few cycles of opening and closing are needed.

But when they do, people move faster because they understand that things go away here.

3 components to make them move faster:

1. Real Scarcity
2. Real Urgency
3. Real Consequences

Real Scarcity

Use your Freedom Number to create real scarcity. 3 options:

1. Raising Prices:

I raised my prices at 25% capacity. I'll do it again at 50%. Again at 75%.

This gives me 3 opportunities to raise the price in the future. Which increases lead speed.

Example: <https://ckarchive.com/b/gkunh5hdwg8mzfzodd9oku5xlkv99am>

2. Intake Spots:

I cap spots every month because I prefer stable over volatile months.

This gives me real scarcity because I close when I hit that number every month.

Example: <https://ckarchive.com/b/xmuph6hr2qv5ntrnppvnqc03rnklan>

3. Global Spots:

The existence and repetition of the Freedom Number sends a message:

“That one day they will not be able to work with me because someone took your place.”

You can use your Freedom Number offensively by letting people know of your plan when you hit it: Less availability, invite-only community, taking a break, etc...

Example: <https://ckarchive.com/b/68ueh8hkr2qlrhkq88gqmtzdz0nkkf9>

Note: Not all my offers have scarcity. Workshops don't need it because one more customer doesn't mean one more unit of work for me. But client offers always do.

Real Urgency

Offers that cycle sell better than offers that don't.

Most people just have one cycle: open once and remain open forever.

I think that's a waste because taking an offer down allows it to sell better when it's up:

Starbucks - U.S. Sales

* Indexed to January 2013 (=100)

 Second Measure

For me a cycle lasts a minimum of a week and maximum of two.

Personal rules:

- a) Always have a date of closing. That way you can close even if the campaign flops.
- b) A cycle must last a minimum of 1 week.
- c) A maximum of two.

Note:

Your urgency has to be real. If you don't have something tangible - invent it.

It could be objective like "You can only join before Monday because I go live on Monday."

Or subjective like "It's my birthday. Birthday offer this weekend."

Resource:  Your Next 90 Offers .

Real Consequences

Now that we created real scarcity and real urgency we need to let people feel the consequences of missing out. This will speed them up for the next time:

Everyone bends over backwards to please them. You don't.

They're not used to this. It's a pattern interrupt. And that's why it works so well.

Let them feel the consequences publicly and privately:

4 Ways To Introduce Consequences Publicly

1) Married Girl Strategy

<https://ckarchive.com/b/68ueh8hkeegpbkq88gqmtzd87nkbb9>

2) Expired Page

<https://www.cashcreators.io/order-form-614873251710700855564>

3) Waitlist Email

<https://ckarchive.com/b/8kughoh0639qrc3n66mnqfz7o4999u3>

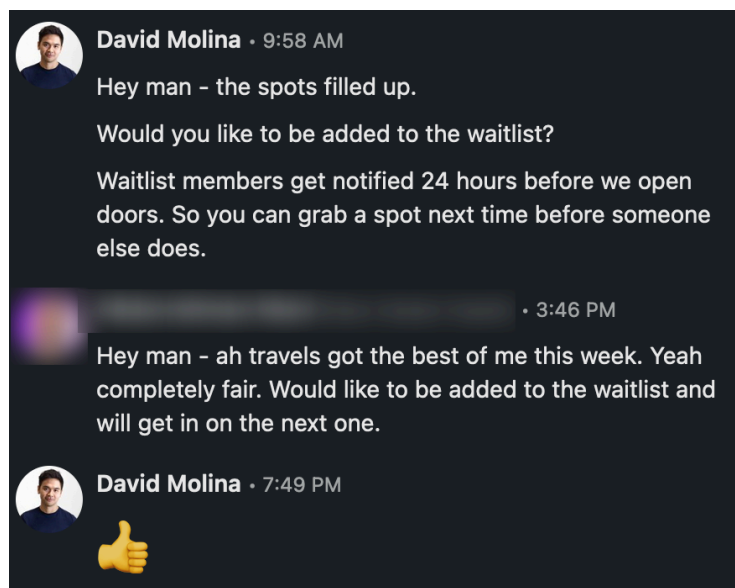

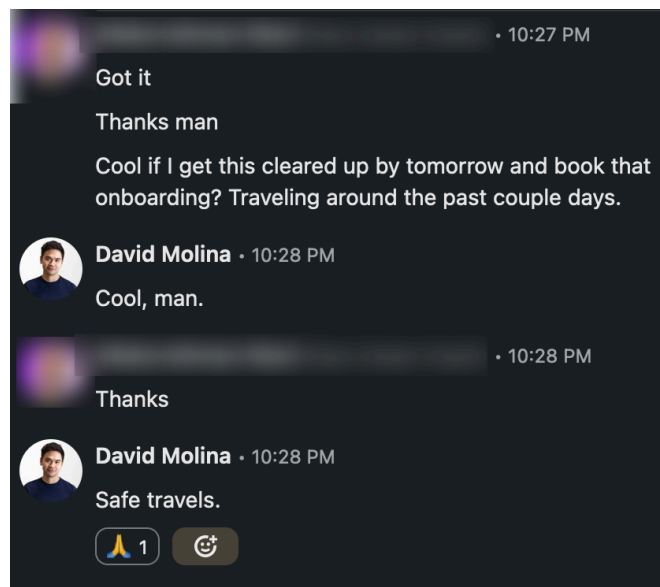

4) Take Things Away

<https://ckarchive.com/b/xmuph6hr007d6crnppvnqc03rnkllan>

3 Ways to Introduce Consequences Privately:

1) Let them know they missed out.

Often we don't tell people that they missed out. But a handful of great clients have come because of it.

2) Consequence-Based Follow Ups

I Follow Up. But I don't "sell" people into my things. I just remind them of the consequences of missing out:

Frame: "This is here now but won't be here later. Are you in or out?"

Real Follow Ups
Asked for details	Here: https://docs.google.com/document/d/1vq65ts3MsL4eaYJS315OCnb1k6MhRzQp7oCb__Ro-Jg/edit?usp=sharing Have a read and let me know if you're in because I'm only opening 10 spots out of the usual 25. Cool? JK
Follow Up 2 Biz Days Later	Name, We close in X days and I don't want you to miss out. For this group - I've included a 1-1 call where I'll personally build your offer and get you clear on how to get your next 3 clients with it. Are you in?
The day we close	Name, Cash Creators closes doors today. Are you in or should I close your file? JK
Spots are full or 1 day after the closing date	Name, Cash Creators is closed. Would you like me to add you to the waitlist? Waitlist members get notified 24 hours before the rest. That way you can take your spot next time before it's taken. JK.
No Response	Hey name - I'm closing your file because I didn't hear back from you. JK

Note: Closing files on people gives you benefits way beyond money:

JUST SIGNED ANOTHER CLIENT PIF!!!! 🎉

Btw...

Loving the boundary setting and knowing how to message people to get them moving on a decision!

→ That “closing file” move has helped me remove all those open energetic loops and channel my mental energy on what will continue moving the needle.

It's not the no's that kill you. It's the maybe's that kill you.

3) Start conversations with people who missed out.

Real conversation:

“Hey JK, I was on the road for the last 2 weeks and I missed this workshop. Curious if you'd be willing to sell the replay. I'd be happy to pay for this.”

“I don't sell this replay unfortunately. What are you looking for? I may have other stuff that might be helpful.”

Stick to your process and eventually they will stick to it too.

Implementation

It takes 3-4 months for your Audience Respect to rise. And once it does the game becomes much easier.

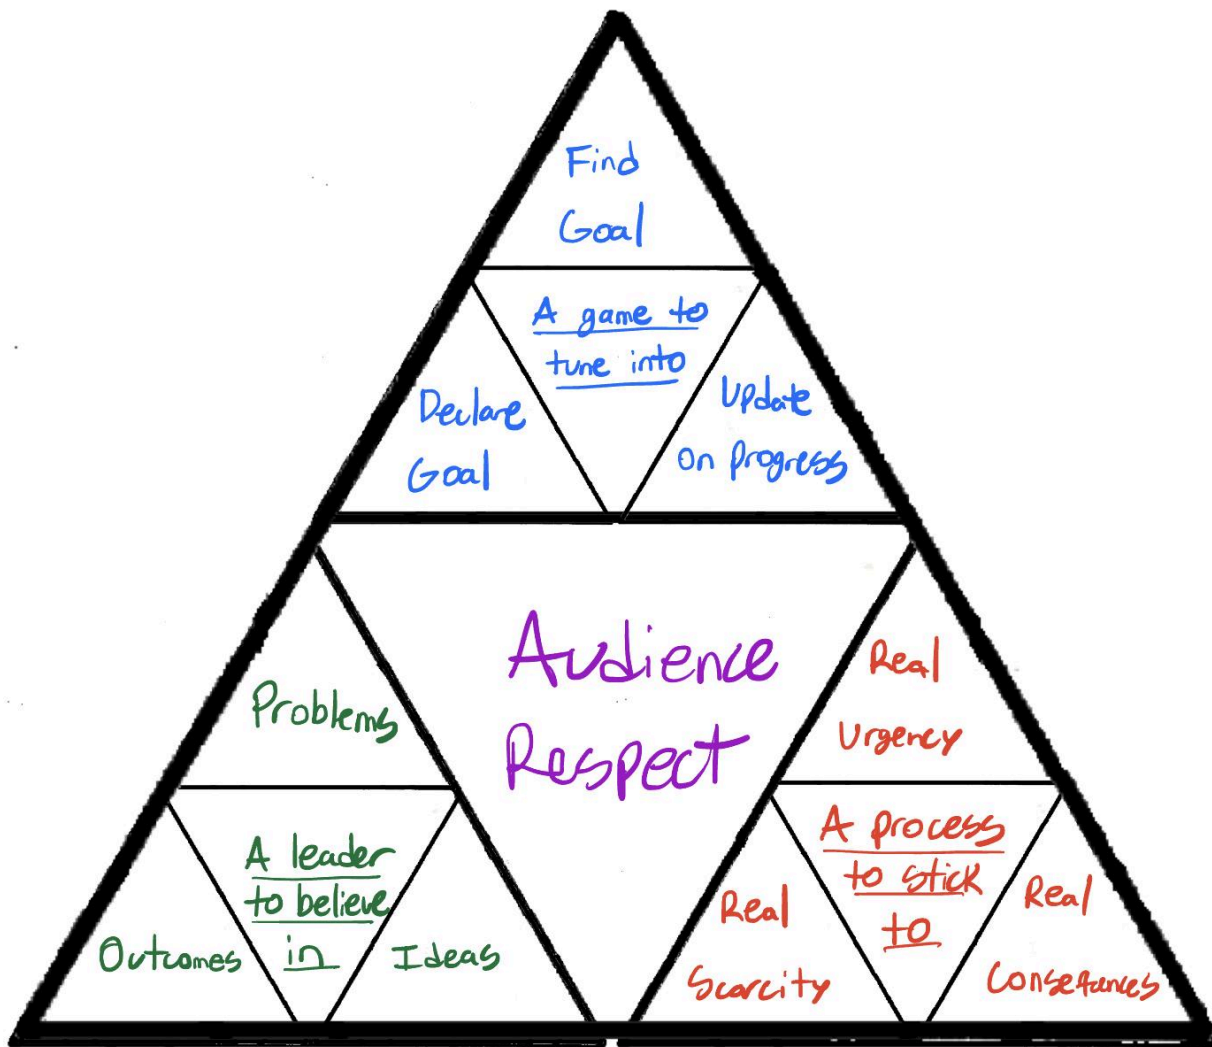

It starts with making promises and sticking to them:

Promise you'll give them a game to tune into. Then give it.

Promise you'll be a leader to believe in. Then be it.

Promise you'll stick to your sales cycle. Then do it.

And they'll thank you for it. Because with all the foolishness and indecision in their lives, why not a man like you?

Complementary Resources

My 90 best emails → 90 Days Of Offers Swipe File

Writing with Insight, not Value → Value vs. Insight

Personalization → Cash Creators.