

Scenario Swipe

You're always going to be having conversations. Small optimizations to how you frame your words can make a big difference.

"I did not say he hit his friend."

Using the right Framing in specific scenarios can help you get, retain and upsell clients better.

Our schedule today:

The Top 10

- Position Your Offer As The Solution
- Prospect asked for the invite.
- Prospect doesn't move
- Client Upsell: To DMs Access
- Credit: Retain them using credit
- Long Term Deal: Retain Clients At A Lower Fee
- Client payment fails
- Client asks to churn
- Client wants to pause
- Prospect is asking unnecessary questions

Turn Client Into Higher Level Client

- Direct Client Upsell
- Client: PIF Upgrade
- Client wants back in

Retain Client

- Client Renewal: Keep Them Beyond The Initial Agreement
- Churn Prevention (Buy 2 Get 1 Free)
- Churn Prevention (Long Term Deals)
- Client: Payment dispute
- Client wants to cancel before the agreed time
- Client wants to downgrade
- Pass Buyer

Serve Clients

- Client is inactive
- Not much material for your clients
- Client is crossing boundaries or not thinking for themselves
- Client is asking too granular questions
- Client is asking googleable questions
- Client DMs you instead of posting in community
- Client: Ask about referrals
- Clients: Share Wins
- Clients: Share Struggles
- Client: Won't get off your 1-1 call
- Client: Takes up too much time on the group call
- Not A Good Fit

Turn Prospect Into Customer or Client

- DMing Your Audience
- Prospect got your Auto DM
- Prospect keeps asking for info but doesn't pay
- Prospect ghosts
- Prospect is broke
- Prospect Doesn't Have The Time / Bandwidth Right Now
- They thank you but don't give you much context
- Prospect requests to be added to the Waitlist
- Does It Have A Minimum Time Commitment?
- Prospect just bought workshop
- Prospect Asks To Join After Deadline
- Prospect Missed Deadline
- Waitlist Spot Opens Up

Resources

I'm sure I missed some but we can use the second half of the workshop or the community for that.

The Top 10

Position Your Offer As The Solution

We're not going to solve their problems because we risk getting sidetracked. We lack context on their problem and they lack context on our solution. So it might get long.

To avoid that, position the offer you're planning to make as the solution.

2 examples:

Reply with your offer and I'll show you where to start with yours.

Likes aint cash,

JK Molina

to me ▼

Man, I dig the way you think...

And I'd love to hear your thoughts for this offer.

Cheers,

JK Molina <jk@jkmolina.com>

to

Tue, Jul 2, 11:18 AM

The numbers are impressive. I wouldn't add anything.

But I would remove a lot. The offer is clearly compelling and you can do many things. But you profit more when you make the message about the one piece of information that the prospect wants you to convey.

I do this for you in Cash Creators along with a plan if you'd like to see the details.

Lmk.

JK

Another who asked about a specific problem:

I'll open 12 spots in June 3rd.

For an early invite reply "game".

I am tempted....but would I be in the same place as [redacted] couldn't help me with getting an audience. 2000 emails right now .

JK Molina <jk@jkmolina.com>

to [redacted]

Together the focus would be on what you didn't lose but you haven't leveraged.

Existing clients. Previous leads. etc...

$20k is good. $40k is not too far. You just need the plan.

I can help if you'd like. Would you like to see the doc?

Don't solve the problem for them. Position your Doc as the answer and offer to send it.

For more on Closed Conversations:

- 3 Good ones
- Closed Conversations \(Dec\)
- Closed Conversations \(Jan\)

Prospect asked for the invite.

Why:

Giving people a reason to move now typically makes them more likely to do so.

What Option 1:

*Here: *link

*Have a read and let me know if you're in or if you have any questions because [Reason Why].
Cool?*

What Option 2:

Hey Name - good to connect.

Here's how things work in this newsletter. I've included your invitation below and 1 of 3 things may happen:

1. You're not in.

It's fine. Let me know and I'll keep you on the newsletter.

2. I don't hear back from you by November 11th.

In that case I'll assume I won't hear back from you again and I will remove you from my list so neither of us keep open loops.

3. You're in or you have any questions.

Let me know and I'm glad to clarify or talk next steps.

*Your invite: *link

JK

Prospect doesn't move

Why:

Follow up with the truth: You will close. It will be because you're full or because you hit a certain date but you will close.

What:

 Follow Ups

Client Upsell: To DMs Access

Why:

1. Clients don't fall in love with us, they fall out of love with us.
2. An excuse why to take an offer goes a long way. Seasonality is a good one.
3. Maybe they don't know it's an option.

What:

Right after someone has their 1:1 with you:

*"Good chat. Here's the recording: *link

Btw - would you like DMs access?

This way we implement the plan fast for $400/week on top of your current fee. You're free to downgrade when set up or whenever you like."

And every month, post it on your community or email it:

<https://ckarchive.com/b/gkunh5hd08pmwfzodd9oku89q2e99cm>

Notes:

Google Doc for that:  1-on-1 Coaching With Me .

Credit: Retain them using credit

People keep moving if you make it easy for them to do so. But we often don't give people something to buy after the last thing they bought.

*I'm doing this new thing now where I credit all payments you've made into the future.
You've paid $5,100 which I can credit into our 1-1 access for 6 months going forward.
6 months at 1-on-1 is $750/week.
With the credit it ends up at $550/week.
If you'd like to do this it's an option available to you.*

Long Term Deal: Retain Clients At A Lower Fee

I value predictability over volatility. So if I can choose to reduce my MRR but get to play longer games with people I'm glad to do it.

*Hey man - thought this might benefit you:
I believe in playing long term games with long term people so thought about a deal with you.
I can reduce your weekly fee from $300 down to $250 if you stay for a year.
No need to pay upfront I just reduce the next payment onwards.
You end up saving $2,600 over the year.
And we both get someone we can play the long game with.
You in?*

Client payment fails

Never assume malice.

*Hey Name - your last payment didn't go through.
Everything ok or should we work something else out?*

Client asks to churn

They're typically scared because they're uncertain. And people usually have fight or flight responses. You have to take the assertive approach and give them certainty with one good next step.

Hey Jk, Is it okay if I downgrade my plan to the $100/mth one for now, I'm a bit hard up financially right now

Jk Molina

2:56am

Respectfully, this shouldn't be a surprise to you. You're doing a lot of the right things but you're also moving too slow like you mentioned the other day. Downgrading won't serve you because what you need now is more money. Not saving money. Come to the call on Monday and let's dig in and craft a plan.

If I may: starting from scratch is unnecessary for you. I've got folks who make more than me or who don't meet my "ideal" client that are still in my audience. The issue is that they're hidden. It's much easier to find THEM and build from there than to start from scratch.

I think this benefits you more: why don't you come to Monday's call and I'll show you how. Got a few templates and offers you can send to your list that same day to find these Whales. We craft a plan and take it from there. Cool?

Notes:

Closer treatment may be required and that's ok.

I will make the next weekly payment (tomorrow) and then need to end my membership. Let me know if there's anything I need to do to action this.

Jk Molina
What happened?

10:02am

Ha, everything! Am in survival mode right now, which I hate to admit.

10:23am

Jk Molina
Respect for admitting it though

10:29am

Jk Molina
Why don't we do this? Why don't we do a pseudo-DM pass for this week. No additional charge. Text me the problems and I can help you find a way around them. Then come to the Monday's call and we can come up with something. You're a great client and I'd love to help you with a plan.

10:30am

Pseudo-DM pass — now there's something I've never heard before!

That would be helpful, thank you.

What time is the Monday call?

10:39am

Client wants to pause

I don't do maybes. Personal principle.

"I don't do pauses. You're either in or out. You're welcome to rejoin back in 12 months if you'd like at [Price]."

Note:

A separate option is to get them to give them a discount if they pay upfront. Example: They ask to pause for a month. You give them 5 weeks if they pay upfront.

Prospect is asking unnecessary questions

Why:

Sometimes prospects just want you to take the assertive approach and lead.

What:

The Should Be Fine Strategy

Turn Client Into Higher Level Client

Direct Client Upsell

Not a fan of "buttering" people up to upsell them. Just make them the offer. They already "get it".

*Hey - I started a small group of people [gunning for outcome].
Shall I send you the details?*

→ Then if they say yes:  The Table

Client: PIF Upgrade

Timing matters when asking a question. Strike when the iron's hot (after a win or early on in the journey).

*Hey - good to see your recent wins.
As a reminder: The $X is still available to you for the next week.
The original payment would be $Y. With the discount it's $Z.
Let me know if you'd like to take it.
I can credit the payments you made, cancel all future charges and run the card on file.*

Client wants back in

Get them to explain why they want back in. Don't just take them in blindly. Sends the wrong message.

"Good to hear from you again. What changed?"

Retain Client

Client Renewal: Keep Them Beyond The Initial Agreement

More "selling" hurts you when trying to upsell people. It's super awkward. A message where you give them the option to renew is faster and in my experience works more often.

(2 weeks away from deal ending)

*Hey name - with our initial deal ending I thought this might benefit you:
I believe in playing long term games with long term people so I thought about a deal.
I can reduce your weekly fee from $300 down to $250 if you stay for a year.
No need to pay upfront I just reduce the next payment onwards.
You end up saving $2,600 over the year.
And we both get someone we can play the long game with.
You in?*

Churn Prevention (Buy 2 Get 1 Free)

Why:

Used best in May and November (right before Summer and Holidays when people are less likely to stick to their commitments).

Prep in the good times so in the bad times you'll be ready.

What:

*The Holidays are just around the corner.
A festive and hectic time.
And let's be honest, an expensive one too. So I figured maybe I can help.
Here's what I have for you:
Buy 2 Months, Get 1 Month Free.
I know it's a mental thing but skipping auto-charge on Christmas and New Year makes us breathe a little easier.
So if you pay for 2 months now I'll stop your weekly payments now and only resume them sometime in February.
I'm also adding a complimentary 1:1 call if you get this before DATE.
Reply "Black Friday" if you're in.
JK*

Churn Prevention (Long Term Deals)

Good months usually precede the bad ones. You can make people commit to you in the good ones so when the bad ones inevitably come you will be ready. Best used in May and November.

The Cash Creators Long Discount

Bittersweet:

I sold a company 2 years ago for a chunk of money.

But 6 months ago that same company sold for 8 times as much.

And I don't do regrets but this one stung quite a bit.

Yet it taught me a lesson:

Play long term games with long term people.

This Black Friday I'd like to make it easy for both of us to play it.

Here's what I've got for you:

It's called The Long Discount.

It's a discount on your Cash Creators fee where we both get the opportunity to play the long term game with each other.

As I'll be closing Cash Creators to outsiders soon, I'm more interested in keeping our circle tight than to blitz-scale and lose the closeness that allows both of us to get stuff done.

And I'd like my offer to you to reflect that.

Whether you've been here for weeks or months or years,

There's something we can work out.

DM me and I'll send you what your Long Discount would look like.

Client: Payment dispute

Why:

Personally not worth the time. It throws me off for days

What:

I just refund.

Client wants to cancel before the agreed time

"Hey - doing that would go against our X week agreement. Neither of us wants that relationship between us."

- + Ask them to agree to one easy next step.

Canceling now would go against our 16 week agreement. Neither of us wants that relationship between us. I'm glad to cancel your subscription as soon as that's over if you'd like.

Jk Molina

3:58pm

Meanwhile we can see how to make the most out of it with Black Friday and the Holidays coming. Why don't you come to the call on Monday and we can craft a plan with your time constraints?

You're right. I did make a commitment.

8:23am

I'll be on the call

8:23am

Client wants to downgrade

It might be that they're acting emotionally and you can remove the clutter for them and help them take one easy next step.

Or they legit just have stuff going on.

"What happened?" And then genuinely see what's up.

Pass Buyer

Keep giving people things to buy. There must always be something after that and then something after that. Often our bottleneck isn't leads but it's not giving leads something else to buy.

"Hey, as agreed I'll charge your card the other $500 and remove you from the community tomorrow. A different option if you prefer:

I can cancel your next payment and you can remain in cash Creators for just the $400/week starting next week. We commit to the [goal] for 16 weeks and you're free to continue or leave right after. This way you save $500 and keep your access and momentum. You in?"

Serve Clients

Client is inactive

I'm a consultant not a babysitter. If someone's inactive because they're doing the work then I'm not going to interrupt. If I have a hint that they're unclear on what to do then I will reach out (you can see their content or socials).

Not much material for your clients

Clients buy the guru. Not the guru's stuff. "WD40-ing" your lack of systems with an abundance of you gets the job done.

I've got the goal we need to get to the goal inside my head right now. Just not in the portal which is why I'm building it as I go. So while that's ready, you can get DM access and book calls with me to make sure you're always clear. Cool?

Client is crossing boundaries or not thinking for themselves

People respect you holding your ground.

*In the nicest way possible....
Respectfully...*

Client is asking too granular questions

They may not know what's best for them now. It's hard to see when the problem is happening to you. But giving them clarity on that is enough for them to be able to solve the task on their own.

Reframe them to understand the big picture. Get them to zoom out and understand WHY the thing is happening or not happening to them.

Additionally it may be an emotional problem. If that's the case then reframe the problem.

Example: (If someone's been "stuck" in revenue for the past 3 months, reframe it as "3 months of consistent revenue". The conversation now isn't about how bad they are but about how to optimize the machine.)

Ok. Let's zoom out...

Client is asking googleable questions

Set the tone that you don't do that here.

"In the nicest way possible: these are googleable questions. Please don't ask me googleable questions."

Client DMs you instead of posting in community

Why:

It's too dry if you don't help them and hit them with the "ask it in the community please"

But if you make an exception once and then ask them to do it they tend to appreciate it.

What:

Answer their questions. Then when that's over:

By the way I'm glad to continue coaching you here for that offer in the DMs since now you're on the community level.

Would you like to see the details of what what would look like?

Then →  1-on-1 Coaching With Me (Discounted)

Client: Ask about referrals

I reduce $50/week for the client every week that their referrer stays.

Clients: Share Wins

Why: It makes them feel good.

What:

What are your wins of the week?

Even better if you don't just make it about money. They could be:

- Financial
- Non Financial
- Personal
- Relationships

- Confidence
- Consistency

Clients: Share Struggles

Asking people about their struggles helps you find those who are struggling and be helpful. Being helpful is good for business.

"What are you struggling with?" Let the Cash Creators help you.

Notes:

Additionally I've opened voice notes for some clients just so they can rant about their problem. Helps me catch the nuance to see where I can help.

Client: Won't get off your 1-1 call

Frame the duration of the call early so that it doesn't happen.

In the beginning: "Ok. We've got 30 minutes. Let's make it happen. How can I help?"

Client: Takes up too much time on the group call

It's often not that they're hogging the call. But they're just getting too caught up in the small things and that's overwhelming. Help them zoom out.

1 or 2 questions are fine. But if they keep piling them up, start relating it to everybody. "This might be relevant for everyone here..."

If they keep asking, zoom them out. Explain why the problem is happening to them so they get relief. And offer to explain the tactics together privately.

Privately, you ask them if they'd like to see what working closer together with you would look like.

Not A Good Fit

Hey Name - I just refunded and removed you from the community because it's not a good fit.

Turn Prospect Into Customer or Client

DMing Your Audience

Why:

Starts conversations in which you can sell them into the tier of your Offer Shell that fits them.

What:

Hey name - appreciate the follow / like / comment.

Typically people follow me because of A, B or C Topics.

Are you doing any of these? I may have some stuff that can be helpful.

Prospect got your Auto DM

Here: Link

What are you working on?

I might I have some other stuff that can be helpful.

Prospect keeps asking for info but doesn't pay

They're too used to them being the prize. Flip the script to make them sell themselves to you.

Hey - last time I sent you the details I didn't hear back from you.

What changed?

Prospect ghosts

We don't do maybes. It's either yes or next. Often that makes them take you seriously for when you open the opportunity again:

Hey Name - I'm closing your file because I didn't hear back from you.

Prospect is broke

Don't waste your energy on broke people but don't offend them either.

What:

[Let them save face].

You may find this helpful instead:

low ticket offer link

Prospect Doesn't Have The Time / Bandwidth Right Now

I'm confused. Isn't more time/bandwidth the reason we're talking? There will always be work to do. The best time for us to get started on freeing up the time to do things other than work would be now. Which I'm glad to walk you through.

They thank you but don't give you much context

Good time to offer help but you don't want to be too pushy.

A direct invitation that makes it their choice to move forward is a good approach.

Appreciate it.

If that [thing] was helpful you may consider becoming a client.

Prospect requests to be added to the Waitlist

Talk is cheap. Transactions are the only truth in my world.

Hey Name.

The Waitlist works on a "first come first served" basis. The only way to get in Cash Creators is to be first in line by saving a spot. There's currently two people ahead of you.

You can save yours here today and then we'll work out a date to get you started:

Cash Creators Waitlist

JK

Does It Have A Minimum Time Commitment?

It takes 16 weeks to set the foundations for $1 million up. If you can't commit to the result for that time then don't commit at all.

Prospect just bought workshop

Every purchase comes with intent. Find out why they bought something. The Workshop Funnel is not designed to make money but to filter in the people with the intent to work with you:

*Hey - welcome to [Product]
What are you working on?
I have some other stuff that might be helpful.*

Notes:

Some people do this with selfie videos. Not my style but works well for them.

Prospect Asks To Join After Deadline

Prospect isn't aware of how things work here. You hold the status now and it is a good opportunity to sell them something else. At the very least they know to move fast in the future.

I don't sell this replay unfortunately. What are you looking for? Maybe I can shoot some other stuff your way.

Prospect Missed Deadline

Hey Name - the Cash Creators intake filled up last night. Would you like to see the Waitlist details? That way you can take your spot next time before it's taken.

Waitlist Spot Opens Up

Hey Name - a spot opened up. You're next on the list. Would you like to get started?

No response in 2 days: Hey - let me know unless you'd prefer me to release your spot to someone else?

No response in 3 days: I'm giving your spot to someone else. Closing the loop here.

Resources

- Cash Creators - Private Invite
- The Table
- Cash Creators Waitlist
- 1-on-1 Coaching With Me \(Discounted\)

-  Invitation: $5k In 5 Weeks
- For script I use to sell Cash Creators: Cash Script
- For specific scenarios: Community & Office Hours.
- For your own case: Now.